

Guidance Counselling

The Guidance Service

The Northside Partnership offers a Guidance Counselling service to people within its catchment area, through our qualified Guidance Counsellor. The aim of this service is to provide independent guidance, which facilitates people continuing in or returning to education.

The Guidance Counsellor provides a guidance service to clients referred from other agencies, community groups and by self-referral. Through this service, clients get comprehensive information regarding all education/training options available to them. Needs analysis, interest inventories and aptitude testing is also provided as necessary.

This guidance can be vital for clients who wish to explore the options and choices open to them. This then facilitates them in choosing the right subject options, courses of study or career paths.

Who is it For?

The Guidance Service is free of charge and open to anyone who lives within the Northside Partnership catchment area.

If you would like to know more about our Guidance Service or would like to make an appointment, please contact:

Our Guidance Counsellor, Paul Hayes in the Northside Partnership on 01- 848 5630

Or by email to paul.hayes@nspartnership.ie